Client-side support through to go-live

Implementation management for clients can be fraught with challenges ranging from resource allocation and scope creep to technical complexity and change management. Clients often struggle with allocating sufficient resources, defining and controlling project scope, navigating technical intricacies, managing resistance to change, identifying and mitigating risks, coordinating stakeholders, and measuring success criteria. RIVOR's implementation management solution's address these issues by giving you a highly qualified team that can guide you through and manage the entire implementation through to go-live.

Everything you need from start to finish

RIVOR can provide full project management of your technology implementation, including project planning, guiding project phases, resource management, solution design, testing, reporting, documentation, and building a skilled servicing team for ongoing support.

1. Planning

Implementation methodologies, detailed project plans, and templates to organise tasks, document discussions, and ensure alignment with project objectives.

2. Building

Configuration blueprints, requirements documents, security templates and security matrices to ensure the systematic development of the technology solution with precise configurations and robust security measures.

3. Testing

Establishment of comprehensive test strategies, test scripts, user acceptance testing (UAT) workbooks, test introduction decks to orient stakeholders, issue management to track and resolve issues, and documentation of testing outcomes and progress.

4. Training

Comprehensive training strategies encompassing lesson plans and user guides, work instructions and training videos, and integration of third-party resources.

5. Deployment

Gap analysis to identify discrepancies, go-live checklists and assessment, ensuring a smooth transition and successful launch of the technology solution.

6. Support

Streamlined problem resolution, employee query management, FAQs and links to essential resources, ensuring continuous and efficient support for users of the technology solution.
